Chauvin Council Elected By Acclamation

Little excitement was evinced in the annual nomination meeting for councillors for the Village of Chauvin, on Monday evening. During the first hour only two nominations were made being that of L. E. Roy and D. W. Parcels. The other member of the retiring council declined to accept a nomination, though urged to do so.

The only other nomination was that of A. E. Keith, who has served on the council in former years.

At ten o'clock the returning officer, H. N. Freeman declared nominations closed, and Messrs L. E. Roy, D. W. Parcels and A. E. Keith elected as councillors by acclamation.

Saskatchewan Legislature

New Measure To Be Introduced Dealing With Temperance Question

Regina, Nov. 23.—The third session of the fourth legislature of the province of Saskatchewan was opened Thursday by Lieutenant-Governor Sir Richard Lake before crowded galleries. George A. Scott, member for Arm River since 1905 was elected speaker, Mrs. M. O. Ramsland, Pelly, C. M. Hamilton, Weyburn, and W. H. Harvey Kindersley, three new members were introduced and took their seats having been elected at recent by-elections. The speech from the throne indicated that new measures would be introduced in connection with the temperance question; education providing among other things for night classes and teachers residences; proportional representation in urban municipalities; enlargement of powers of rural municipal councils. Reference was also made to ways and means for the province reaping a share of the benefits of renewed industrial agovernment felt that steps should be taken to acquire greater knowledge of the extent and value of the natural resources of the province, and towards securing their development. Promise was also given in the speech from the throne that a measure dealing with a water supply plan for the people in the area between the south Saskatchewan river and the cities of Moose Jaw and Regina would be submitted and that the situation existing between the provincial and Dominion government in connection with tariff reform, natural resources and other matters would be taken up.

The Rebekahs held their regular meeting last night.

RECEPTION TO THE RETURNED MEN WAS 'BIG' EVENT: EVERYBODY HAD A GOOD TIME

Monday evening reception for the returned veterans proved, as we had forecasted, the most important social function of the season—entirely successful—there being but one tinge of regret the knowledge that no matter how good the evening, it could in no way adequately express in a full measure our appreciation of the splendid service rendered by our boys. But for all that there was throbbing through the whole meeting a sacred sensation of thankfulness in the return of the boys; a pride in the work they had accomplished, and appreciation of the sacrifices they had made.

The chairman, Lt-Col W. Rodden happily expressed these thoughts in his opening remarks. This grand district remained ours as a result of the work of 'Our Boys' 'over there'. A work which will go down to history. The Agricultural Society which worked for the betterment of the agricultural interests of the district took the most sincere pride in the returned boys and he expressed the hope that throughout the future the Veterans and the Agricultural Society may be found co-operating and working side by side in the interests of the welfare of our own home land.

The program was one of sterling quality. Encores and double encores being the rule—not the exception.

The program was as follows:—Overture Selection by the Chauvin Orchestra

Chairman's Opening Remarks
Song, Fred and Rita LaPlante
Reading, Miss Armour
Song, Charles Kirby
Song, William Muir
Song, Mrs Porryan
Song, Robert Muir
Reading, Grover Lasell

Song William Muir
Song, William Muir
Tableau "Britannia" Mrs C. M. Kirby, Canada, Comrade Perch; Sailor, A. Petrie; Zulu, C. Ryal; Indian, G. Tessier.

The program as recorded above is not at all an indication of the actual concert owing to the number of encores. It is superfluous to praise in these columns, but it is perfectly obvious that the audience wanted more. William Muir, the 'Harry Lauder of Edmonton' captivated the audience with his Scotch songs. His willing compliance with continued recalls cost him considerable effort, his strongly musical voice being taxed to the limit. The reception he received he will not easily forget, and he is assured of an enthusiastic welcome when he pays us a return visit.

After the tableau came the Grand March Past of Veterans. Homelike in its grand simplicity, but not a heart but was deeply stirred with a profound emotion too deep for expression—"Our boys! Our Boys back again! Our boys who have suffered! Our Boys who have won! Our Boys, to whom we wish a long life, happy homes, peace and prosperity! Our Boys! God Bless Them-

Supper was then served in the basement, first to the veterans and their ladies and then to the company.

Dancing continued until three o'clock the floor was well filled and every one had a really good time.

Local Notes of Interest

The most hardy of autoists seem to have given up ideas of running their cars any more this season.

Passenger traffic to and from Chauvin continues heavy.

The Chauvin Orchestra are maintaining regular practise nights—more power to their elbow.

Code's rink drew first blood last Wednesday evening, after a pretty battle against Freeman. The score being 8-4.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRINCE OF WALES TO ALL WHO SERVED THE GREAT WAR

"H.M.S." Renown Camperdown N.S. November 25th 1919

"To all the men and women of Canada, who served at the front in the great war:

"On sailing from the Dominion after my first visit, I wish to tell you what a pleasure it has been to me to see so many thousands of you during the last six months. On behalf of the king, I congratulate you on your splendid war services, and for myself I thank you for having received me, not only as the Prince of Wales, but as an old comrade in the field.

"I shall always look upon you as comrades and I hope you will do the same for me. Au Revoir."

"EDWARD P"

Last Saturday night was the end of the year and a large gathering of 'Vets' attended the meeting.

A very heavy night was the result and a lot of work was gone through.

The election of officers resulted in the popular president, Mr. E. A. Pitman being returned and Mr. J. A. MacKenzie, as 1st Vice, G. M. Beattie, 2nd Vice and an Executive committee J. A. Sim, F. J. Laplante and C. J. Smith.

A new committee was appointed consisting of comrades Laplante, Monkman, Black, called a house committee; and its function to care for the clubrooms, introduce games etc, and to look after the welfare of travelling vets.

We are going to have our rooms fixed up with popular Magazines, papers, draughts, chess, and other games, and we want all vets. to feel at home and use these club rooms.

The delegation to the forthcoming convention was discussed and G. M. Beattie was appointed.

The convention is one of extreme importance as it deals with the Association's attitude towards the Government's rejection of gratuity proposals.

The future policy is a matter of grave importance as it discusses the amalgamation with some political body.

As to the right or wrong of this I leave the individual to guess but everyone must see that something must be done to wake the Government into action.

We need only look at Australia's magnificent effort.

The Government there has voted 250 million dollars for re-establishment and compared to Canada her debt per capita is much greater.

The president has also drawn attention to the G.W.V.A. Auxiliary meeting to be held next Saturday December 6th at 8 o'clock.

The kin of any person of good character who has seen active service in the Great War 1914-1918, with the forces of the Allied Armies, on one of the Belligerent Fronts, or in England, or in the Branch of which he proposes to become a member, has seen equivalent services with the forces of the Allied Navies and who is still in the service or who has received an honorable discharge therefrom, or nursing sisters, shall be eligible for membership.

The word KIN defined as follows:—wife, sister, daughter, mother, step-sister, and adopted daughter, whether by process of the law or not, all over eighteen years, and also aunts.

Palm Olive soap 15c. the cake.

OUR SERIAL STORY

CHAPTER 36
An Open Question

Though the was scandalised, and Evelyn brought to the blush by the sporting form of Tad's cablegram, the boy himself, was entirely unashamed, and when in the course of a few days an answer—or rather two answers, came, one to Evelyn herself and one to Tad, he felt that he had entirely the best of the argument. 'My English may be pretty rocky, Dad, but you see it did the trick. In his cable to me Mr. Tom says he is bringing me stacks—that's his own word, Dad—of curiosities, and though Miss Raye did not show me her own she looked so jolly rosy and happy that I scooted out of the room—fr fear—she might do it again, you know! In some things boys of that age are as disingenuous as their sisters a few years older.

Now that was all over Tad was secretly rather more than proud of the success of his show—the only weak point to his mind being the rather uncomfortable terms on which he had left Miss Dawson, and even later.

Evelyn was in the hammock under the trees in the rectory garden, with a book in her lap for appearance sake, when Tad came running round the corner of the house. 'Oh, I say, Miss Raye, there's Miss Dawson in the study, and she wants to see you and she's got a big parcel and she looks kind of shaky. You won't be down on her about the letter, will you? I'm sure she was awfully sorry, and she can't help old Dawson being her father, you know.'

That Evelyn was not 'down on her' may be inferred from the fact that Mary Ann looked unmistakably happy when she left the rectory an hour or so later. She had made a full and entire confession of her lapse from the narrow path of official righteousness and regard to the regulations of the office; her peace offering of her cherished quilt had been accepted with some blushes—she's a dear old thing, and it was delightful of her to give it to me, Evelyn confided to Mrs. Jordan afterwards when she showed her the "chef d'oeuvre" in the privacy of her own room—'but I wouldn't for worlds show it to anybody else—not til afterwards.' For Tad, Mary Ann left her love and a large package of very high-grade cookies. 'I never could have had the courage to tell you, she admitted tearfully to Evelyn as she bought her confession to a close. 'If it had not been for the child—his eyes were that kind and trustful, and me telling him a black lie—the poor innocent—it near broke my heart after he had gone—so it did.'

Now slowly, now swiftly, the days passed away for Evelyn; sometimes to her wistful longing it seemed as though the ship that was bringing her lover to her would never reach port; at other times she would be seized with a panic of shyness as to how she should have the courage to meet him when he came.

Tad never relaxed in his devotion to his trust, though he could not forbear wondering at the intricacy of the female mind as revealed by the frequent changes in Evelyn's spirits. As usual he took his wonders to Dad.

'Miss Ray's awfully nice—for a girl—sometimes pretty near as good as a boy—and I wouldn't say a word to any one else, but she's a bit batty—yesterday she sat in the hammock all afternoon and just mooned, and this afternoon down in cownants bush, when we were picking cranberries she was as wild as a hawk—scrambled over the fallen logs and laughed when she tore her petticoats and raced me for more than fifty yards down the meadow and I quite expect that when Mr. Tom has married her he'll wonder some days where he has got off at.'

The 'Hibernian' homeward bound was steaming slowly, down the St. Lawrence, and Tom Dennis and his wife were standing on deck, watching the sun sink behind old Quebec. The kindly shelter of a life-boat gave what Tom judged was of sufficient privacy for his arm to rest on Evelyn's waist—'You ssee, that arm is a bit stiff yet from the old Dutchman's bullet, and it aches if I let it just hang loose,' and Evelyn accepted the excuse as sufficient. 'Do you know, Evelyn, that though I meant to ask you if you would have me and pretty nearly did a year ago—yet actually as a matter of fact I never did—and I suppose it's too late now?'

'Well, Tom dear, I'm afraid it is, since what you call your Irishman's luck has hampered you with a wife without the asking—still, it would be keeping up the name of your countrymen to marry first and do your asking afterwards.'

'If you're fun of my Gonnemara ways I'll just kiss you where you stand, and the ship's parson is nursing the first sensation of seasickness right at the end of the boat—and as ofr marrying first and courting afterwards, why, as we say at home—there are worse things than that same.'

A few minutes' silence, and the sun, who had been blushing for some time discreetly hid his face at a turn of the river—'How dusk it's got all at once, Tom,' and Evelyn looked up in Tom's face. 'I didn't tease you, did I, Tom?'

That's always been an open question between them—but Tom maintained that he was justified bby the terms of his threat.

The blind man picked up a hammer—and saw.

What bird reminds you of a dog when he is pleased?
A wag-tail,

The Story Of An Edmonton Mouse

He was a young and unsophisticated mouse that ventured into Jasper avenue at noon one day. He chose one of the busiest sections for his excursion, and in five minutes he had experienced more of the hazards of the adventurous life than comes to the average mouse in a lifetime.

Barely had he reached the centre of the pavement when a feminine foot descended on him. The lady passed on serenely unconscious of the near tragedy, and after a few seconds of paralyzing fear, the mouse darted towards the gutter, breathing blessings high heel and vaulted instep that spared him from an untimely end.

A fox terrier, nosing along the kerb pounced at the small explorer, who promptly ran under the wheels of a passing automobile. The dog, trying to follow, was bowled over for his pains.

Reaching the car track, the mouse covered in the trench formed by the channel in the steel rail. Just as a car was about to thunder over him and end his conscious wanderings he went over the top and dropped beathlessly into one of those capacious dug-outs that a thoughtful city provides along the car tracks for the accommodation of mice in distress.

Abandoning his effort to cross Jasper Avenue as American aviators cross the Atlantic, by the hop, skip and jump method, the mouse turned on his tracks. Through the racing wheel of a newsboy's bicycle, under several automobiles, and over innumerable boots, he doubled and zig-zagged back towards the gutter.

He charged straight at a bevy of ladies waiting for a car. They scattered with shrieks and an unnecessary raising of skirts. With somewhat restored morale, he sat up on his haunches and pawed the snow out of his eyes and sprouting whiskers. While he was absorbed in his toilet, a kindly hand reached down and picked him up.

Came to the last and with an entire absence of gratitude not confined to the mouse tribe, he turned on his rescuer and made teeth marks in the finger of the Good Samaritan. Struggling and protesting, he was carried to a grating and dropped through. Staggering to his feet, he gave one upward glance at the bars overhead, but decided to call it a day, and disappeared into safety in the farthest recesses of the cellar.

THE APE AND THE WEDGE

In Behar, a great temple was being built, and a carpenter who had partly sawn through a huge beam of wood went away to dinner, leaving a wedge in the beam to prevent the two sawn parts from springing together. While the man was away, a party of monkeys came along, and one of these, thinking to appear clever before his companions, said:

"See me take the wedge out of this beam and give the carpenter more work to do!"

Then he jumped down into the opening in the beam, and tugged away at the wedge, until at last it came out, and at the same moment he sections of the beam sprang together and held the monkey fast until the carpenter returned.

"Those who make trouble for others often fall into it themselves."

These ToursAre Interesting

North Pacific Coast and California resorts are becoming more popular each year with residents of Western Canada who seek a haven for two or three months during the extreme weather the prairie country inherits because of its geographical situation. There are also those who have leisure to make the trip for a shorter period to indulge in the pastimes afforded or bask in the sunshine of these "sunny climes" this season.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and Steamship lines have formulated a series of tours at fares that we submit are attractive. By this route you enjoy the finest scenery of the Canadian Rockies on a 700-mile Ocean voyage through protected waters of the famous "Inside Channel", a water trip that is not excelled for scenic beauty in America. The steamships are the finest and the fastest in the North Pacific regular trade—all outside staterooms, hot and cold running water in each room, electric lighted throughout, and are completely equipped with a modern wireless telegraph system. Meals and berth are included without extra charge while on board ship from Prince Rupert to Vancouver, Victoria or Seattle.

If you are contemplating a trip, we will be pleased to arrange a complete itinerary that will interest you at attractive fares. Apply to any Agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, or write to W. E. Duperow, General Passenger Agent, Winnipeg.

Editorial Comment

A strange characteristic of villages and small towns, not to mention the rural municipalities is that of expres- sing their approval of the actions and policies of their retiring civic officers by a cold silence.

It matters not that these men have given an incalculable amount of time to the work, that they have received and dealt with innumerable request and demands, both reasonable and un- reasonable; thhat they have given the best thought to he direcion of he af- fairs of he public. It would appear that the most suitable reward the pub- lic can give is a lack of opposition. Silence, they tell us, gives consent.

SPLENDID RECORD OF CHAUVIN VILLAGE COUNCIL

The council of the Village of Chauvin have made a record of which they may just be proud. The old council of 1918 left the retiring council with a cash balance of $272.96 and a balance of assets over liabilities of $4201.18. During the current year the retiring council have maintained the public services in an efficient manner. The general cleanliness of the town has been maintained in a more efficient manner than is the case in most cen- tres of similar size. The health of the public has correspondingly been good. Sidewalks and other public prop- erties have been maintained in good condition, and unnecessary expendi- ture studiously avoided. This has born fruit increating a highly satis- factory condition in the civic finances. At the end of October the cash balance of the village of Chauvin was$1139.09 and the balance of assets over liabil- ities was $4457.20. This being an increase of$320.85 in the cash balance and an increase of $252.02 in the bal- ance of assets over liabilities.

Comparisons are odious. There are several of our sister towns along this line of railroad, and within a hundred miles from here that find it necessary to compromise with their creditors, in one case to hand their affairs to the provincial gogvernment. Such is not he case with Chauvin. And in such a season as the present it is a matter of which we may take special pride.

In making these comments, we have but one regret. That is the fact that it is left entirely to the local press to give expression to these vital items of information. We have much respect for the council who do their work and make no noise about it. But at the same time we regret that no one of citizens should take it upon them- selves to express a vote of thanks to the retiring council. Possibly the citizens share in some measure our own reticence. We confess to such a reticence because of the few—the few who regard every expression of ap- proval as a means of sneaking towards some advantage to be gained, as in our case 'a little bit of printing'— fortunately such persons are in the minority (but not without their in- fluence) and we feel that we are ex- pressing the views of the majority of our citizns when we say the village council have done well and keep the good work going.
